AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

Formerly the Public Could Look Directly Into the Kitchen.

The ground-glass window-panes of the white house kitchen are a recent innovation. One morning, says the Woman's Home Companion, Senator Hanna came upstairs to Mr. McKinley's office, and during his stay there said: "Well, Mr. President, you are going to have an Irish stew for lunch to-day."

Of course the chief executive was surprised that the senator should be so well informed, and asked him how he knew.

"Oh, my authority is first-hand," he replied. "As I came in I saw a party of sightseers very much interested in watching what was going on down in the kitchen, so I strolled over to see what it was that entertained them, and found that it was the cook making an Irish stew. She did it well; I've no doubt but that it will be good," he added, jocosely.

This gave Mr. McKinley a new idea, and he asked Col. Bingham if he did not think that the kitchen might be made a little more secluded. The ground-glass panes were the result.

A QUEER FAD.

Lord Rothschild an Enthusiastic Collector of All Kinds of Fleas.

A scion of the renowned Rothschild family is an enthusiastic collector of fleas. He claims to have in his possession more than 10,000 different varieties, and says the finding of a new flea affords him as great delight as the securing of a great masterpiece of art does any of his relatives. Arctic explorers who have just returned from the frozen north have brought him a few samples of fleas that live on animals within the Arctic circle. Such expedition to the polar region is encouraged by Charles Rothschild substantially by his engaging some member of the party to collect fleas from every species of bird and mammal encountered. What more interesting operation can be imagined than that of a fur-bundled arctic explorer, in an atmosphere of great depth below zero, hunting for fleas behind the left ear of a polar bear just to please the fancy of Lord Rothschild.—Chicago Sun.

Everyone is aware that it is not wise to seek a tree's shelter in a thunderstorm, but if you must take refuge there, then climb to the topmost branches. It is proved that the upper boughs of trees during a storm would be the safest position, and it is said that birds in the branches are seldom killed. When the tree is struck by lightning it is the trunk which, presumably from its greater dryness, is a bad conductor, and therefore suffers the most.

TAKE NO SUBSTITUTE.

A SCOTCH SUPERSTITION.

One Who Stops Ringing of Glassware Saves a Human Life.

"In a recent visit I paid to friends abroad I came across a superstition that was new to me, and I haven't found anyone who ever heard of it in America," said Howard B. Temple, of St. Louis, to a Chicago reporter. "One day at dinner somebody hit a glass which began the ringing, jingling noise that is familiar when glassware is struck, and immediately another guest covered the piece with his hands so as to muffle the sound. Everyone present said: 'That's right; stop the ringing.' I found out on inquiring that when one causes this ringing of a glass piece to cease it saves a human life from drowning. How the notion originated I can't explain, but these people I speak of were intelligent and not generally given to cherishing absurd notions. It is said to be a Scotch superstition, but none of my friends could throw light on its origin."
